and Vincent are intensely practical, and they have the knack of explaining well and making themselves so interesting as to hold the undivided attention of any-sized audience.

Institutes of the same character were also held during last week at Massie's Mill, in Nelson county; at Pogue's Mill, at Fontella, in Bedford county, and other points. Others will be held this week in Bedford, Bedford and Botetourt counties, and when the entire fruit-growing regions of Virginia have been covered, say about the 18th or 20th, the good work will come to an end, but the good effects will be enduring. This demonstration work has done, is still doing and will continue to do lasting good in Virginia.

McGuire's University School

OPPOSITE MONROE PARK, RICHMOND, VA.

Forty-sixth session opens September 19. Certificate admits to advanced standing at University of Virginia. Each boy has constant individual attention. Classes small. The average number in each class last year was eight.

At University of Virginia boys prepared here received eight degrees in 1907; seven degrees in 1908; five degrees in 1909, and five degrees in 1910. Only experienced university men engaged in Upper School. Lower School with separate rooms and instruction for little boys. All teachers give the whole of their time to the work of this school.

Professor Fitz Hugh, of University of Virginia, writing August 16, 1909, says: "McGuire's University School is one of the very finest types of Southern private schools for preparation for college, and stands to-day in the very prime of its working efficiency. The students from McGuire's are uniformly successful in the Latin classes at the University. I can recommend this school without reserve."

Dr. J. M. Page, Dean of the University of Virginia, writing September 13, 1909, says: "For about ten years it has been my duty to pass upon the preparation of students entering the University, and it is only fair to say that in no case have I found that a student entering with the McGuire recommendation proved later to be deficient in the subjects for which he was recommended. Considering the wholesome atmosphere of honor and morality by which they are surrounded, and the admirable genuineness and thoroughness of the work—as attested by the very gratifying success of the graduates at college—I have no hesitation in saying that any parent should consider himself most fortunate who has the opportunity to enter his son at McGuire's."
